landed on them; but he adds, their position is incorrect, else he himself would have met with them.

Icebergs were met with last in 47-40 south, 10-51 east.

One grand record established by this voyage is, the fact that in about 56° south, there is a belt of ice circling the earth, forming a boundary beyond which there are two great thermic basins in the ocean. On this belt the mean temperature of the sea is 39½, which temperature is found at the equatorial and polar regions about 1200 fathoms, the surface there being 78°.

In consequence of radiation from the ocean into space, south of this belt, the sea becomes colder; and near the 70th degree, the line of demarcation is found to descend to the fathoms beneath which to the greatest depth, 39½ is the temperature, the surface being at 30°—This circle of mean temperature of the ocean is a standard point in nature. These observations favour the conclusion that the internal heat of the earth exercises no influence upon the temperature of the ocean—a new and important fact in the physics of our globe.

From the Cape the ships proceeded to St. Helena, where they arrived on the 13th May, at Ascension on the 26th May; and at Rio on the 7th June.

Captain Ross remarks upon the total absence of wind in the whole place he visited, except where small islands have been projected from the ocean.

The line of no dip was passed in 13-20 north, 26-11 west; and the equator, owing to the generally light winds, at more than 20 miles N. in, in 25-54 west.

In 3° north the current ran 50 miles a day. In 12-36 north, 25-36 west, no soundings were reached in 1840 fathoms.

Captain Ross says as the result of his barometrical observations, the conclusion, that "the atmospheric pressure is considerably less at the equator than near the tropics; and to the south of the tropic of Cancer, the pressure is less than to the north; so that as the latitude is increased, so will be seen from the following table, derived from hourly observations of the height of the column of Mercury, between 20th November, 1839, and 31st July, 1840.

The mean pressure and amount of atmospheric tide in each latitude are as follows:—
Latitude.	Pressure.	Tide.	At sea.
20-10	30-05	0-00	"
13-0 S.	30-05	-0-60	"
22-17	30-08	-0-53	"
34-48	30-23	-0-82	Cape of Good Hope and Sydney.
42-53	29-50	-0-50	V. D. L.
45-0	29-54	-0-31	At sea.
49-6	29-40	-0-40	Kerguelen and Auckland Islands.
51-33	29-47	-0-32	Falkland Islands.
54-26	29-37	-0-22	At sea.
56-52	29-30	-0-27	Cape Horn.
60-0	29-18	-0-10	"
66-0	29-07	-0-16	"
74-0	28-92	-0-16	"

If the observations had been separated, those at sea from those on land, the apparent result would have been the same.

As between the Equator and the highest northern latitudes, no material difference of pressure at the level of the sea exists, there must be some cause for the atmospheric pressure to be so much much less in the southern than in the northern hemisphere, which remains to be determined. Perhaps it may be recalled, that in September, 1842, when a question in these columns was agitated about the temperature of boiling water, the conclusion was asserted. Sir James Ross's observations confirm the remarks then made. On 16th September, 1842, the ships anchored off Falkland, and Captain Ross had the honour of receiving congratulations on his heroic knightship; his companion in this arduous and satisfactory voyage having become Captain Crozier, at the Falkland Islands.

The Appendix contains papers on the Geology, Zoology, and Natural History of the Falkland Islands, by Robert M'Cormick, Esq., Surgeon of the Erebus; and Meteorological Tables by Sir James Ross. These, with many other incidental matters, we are compelled to leave to the perusal of our readers, and to our readers as speedily as possible, a correct abstract of the principal contents of this most instructive and able publication.

ACTIONERS' LICENSES.—In conformity with the provision of the Act 11 Vic. Speddl, Esq., 10, M'Quay Street; J. M'Quay, George-street; J. Armstrong, Hunter-street; R. Cowan, King-street; S. Solomon, Hunter-street; H. A. Graves, York-street; C. Adrain, York-street; J. H. Adrain, York-street; J. H. Adrain, York-street; G. Lloyd, George-street; J. Stewart, George-street; T. S. Mori, Darlinghurst; and A. C. Brown, Liverpool-street. It will be necessary for the applicants to be prepared with their securities at the time of making their applications.

CAUTION TO OFFICERS OF VESSELS.—There were three cases heard yesterday at the Water Police Office, before Captain Browne and Mr. Justice of the Peace. The first was against the seamen of the barque Fama, and the defendant, a man named Bissett, the chief officer of the vessel. The complainants were all foreigners, and deposed to ill conduct on the part of the captain, who was considered to be the worst of the besting them severely. Although the captain (a man apparently of mild disposition) deposed on behalf of the defendant, that no unnecessary cruelty had been exercised, the Bench were of opinion that the captain was deserving of the preservation of due discipline on board ship required, and therefore in two of the cases fined the defendant £1, and in the remaining one bound him in sureties to keep the peace for three months, which was ordered. The second case, heard yesterday, and in which he was confined to his room a few days longer. —Madras Atlas, July 20.

THE PHOENIX MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.—The Directors of this Company have sent fresh powers and enlarged instructions to the agents here to recommence the business of the agency, which has been suspended for some time past, until it should be ascertained that the partnership, which expired in May last, would be extended. We observe the copartnership has been extended for ten years longer, and that the London and Westminster Bank are the principal shareholders. The directors of the Office has hitherto done a large and profitable business in all its branches, which are numerous, and the proprietors and directors are resolved to prosecute the business with vigour at the head office, and at the different agencies.

PUFFING.—The New Zealand Company and their adherents ought to be adepts at the art of puffing, that is if there be truth in the old proverb, "it is easier to make praise than to observe, however, that they sometimes fall into the mistake of telling taradiddles which can be met by a positive contradiction. For instance, their object now seems to have been to induce the arrival of the Wellington and Nelson settlers, is to puff off the intended settlement of Otago, and in a recent number of the New Zealand Company we find the following announcement:—"The New Zealand Company has been very busily and successfully provided; a number of them have been recently sold at Sydney for the use of the East India Company. Recent arrivals from India announce their arrival here, and make great professions. The Office has hitherto done a large and profitable business in all its branches, which are numerous, and the proprietors and directors are resolved to prosecute the business with vigour at the head office, and at the different agencies."
